“The advantage of ULTRAcel Lifting is that it brings significant improvement to skin elasticity and lifting”

“if you receive ULTRAcel Lifting treatment regularly, it will be very effective to maintain rejuvenated skin and a flexible face contour.”

Being noticed for having clear, and flawless skin can only bring happiness to a person. Then, what kind of skin would be referred to as being good? There can be various classifications, but largely there are four categories: skin complexion, blood vessels and rosacea, texture of the skin surface and skin elasticity.

Most Koreans focus on removing skin pigmentation such as dark patches and freckles and receive treatments focused on this area. That is probably why the most popular laser treatments known to Koreans are laser toning and IPL.

However, wrinkles and skin elasticity due to ageing are also elements that are as important to the skin as discoloration. No matter how fair and flawless your skin is, if it loses its firmness and forms wrinkles, it would be hard for people to claim that you have clear and good skin. Then, what can you do to remove wrinkles and improve skin elasticity? The answer is simple. You only need to set back your skin age.

The main reason your skin loses its firmness and forms wrinkles as you age is because skin tissues such as collagen and elastin decrease due to ageing, which in turn reduces hydration. This aspect would be the starting point to select the option to set back the skin's age.

Setting Back Skin Age

Retaining skin hydration is more important than anything else. In order to retain moisture it is important to continuously take in moisture such as by drinking water and supplementing moisture through vegetables and fruits which contain a lot of moisture, or by maintaining a certain level of humidity by using a humidifier or drying clothes indoors to make sure your home doesn't get too dry.

At the same time, when your skin is severely sagging, it would be advisable to recover the healthiness and firmness of the skin through treatments using high frequency or ultrasonic waves. ULTRAcel Lifting treatment is an effective lifting procedure using high frequency and ultrasonic waves to lift sagging contours, improve skin elasticity and tighten pores.

The advantage of ULTRAcel Lifting is that it brings significant improvement to skin elasticity and lifting (accompanying a little pain). Since high intensity focused ultrasound (HIFU) and two types of high frequency procedures (IntraGen and INTRAcel) are applied at the same time, it causes a dramatic improvement in skin elasticity by stimulating all the skin cells related to ageing from the skin surface to the superficial musculoaponeurotic system (SMAS).

President Lee Kyoung Rock of the Verni Clinic noted, “In order to maintain firm, healthy skin, it is important to receive meticulous and continuous treatment that is suitable to each period. Like regular laser treatments received for skin discoloration and skin tone, if you receive ULTRAcel Lifting treatment regularly, it will be very effective to maintain rejuvenated skin and a flexible face contour.”
